How could your monthly Part D OOP costs change in 2025?^{a,b}

Without the Medicare Prescription Payment Plan...

Meet Peter: Peter has a Part D plan and is taking Drug X, which costs $3,000 per month, and another medication, Drug Y, which costs $9,000 per month. At the pharmacy, Peter would pay his deductible and coinsurance from the initial coverage phase in January.

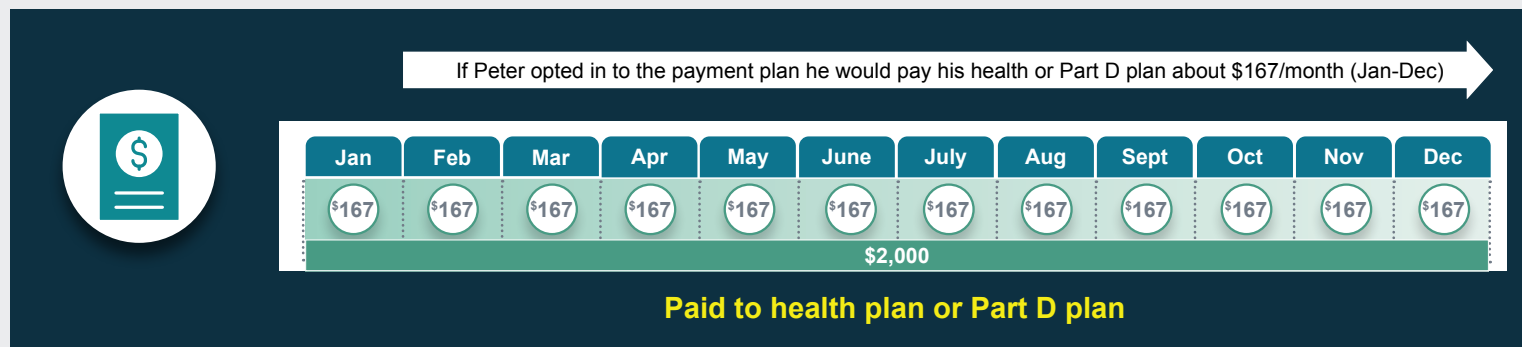

- If Peter fills his prescription for Drug Y (more expensive) first, he will have a $0 copay at the pharmacy for Drug X in January.

With the Medicare Prescription Payment Plan...

If Peter opted in to the Medicare Prescription Payment Plan during open enrollment, he could spread his $2,000 OOP maximum into 12 monthly installments^c

Medicare's "Extra Help" program assists eligible Part D enrollees with OOP costs

- In 2025, those with Extra Help pay a $0 premium, $0 deductible, $12.15 copay for brand-name drugs, and a $4.90 copay for generic drugs⁵
